

Donaghys Liquid Tail Paint

Liquid Tail Alert paint for detecting heat in cows; a practical solution for managing herd mating.

- Clear visual guide to maximise calving ratio.
- Six vibrant, highly visible non-fading fluorescent colours - red, blue, green, orange, yellow and pink.
- Weather resistant, non-irritating to cows
- Demonstrates when cows are on heat / ready for insemination.
- Multiple colours allow you to differentiate failed inseminations.
- Fluorescent Oil based paint formula last up to 30 days in suitable conditions.
- Easy to apply with a built-in applicator brush cap on each bottle.
- Developed from Donaghys extensive research and development programme.
- Available in 1L bottles with applicator brush cap and in 10L bulk pails.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE:

- Shake well before use.
- Apply Tail Paint to the herd 4 weeks before the start of mating.
- Record cows with rubbed or broken paint as they will have cycled.
- After 3 weeks have the vet check all cows who have not cycled.
- Re-apply Tail Paint to the herd at the start of mating with a second colour.
- Check the Tail Paint every 24 hours.
- Cows with rubbed or broken paint have been on heat within the past 24 hours and are ready for insemination.
- Re-apply the tail paint 12 hours post insemination with a third colour.
- If the third application of tail paint is rubbed or broken, the cow has returned to heat and failed to conceive.
- Replace the cap on the 1L bottles after each use to prevent the paint drying and clogging the brush.
